Rick Norlock, Member of Parliament for Northumberland—Quinte West, announced an agreement valued at close to $21 million for the detailed design of a long-term management facility to contain historic low-level radioactive waste in Port Hope, Ontario. The contract was awarded to the joint venture of MMM Group Limited/Conestoga-Rovers and Associates Limited of Thornhill, Ontario.

Work will be funded under the Port Hope Area Initiative, which includes remediation initiatives in the municipalities of Port Hope and Clarington. Natural Resources Canada (NRCan) is the federal department responsible for the Port Hope Area Initiative. Atomic Energy of Canada Limited has been designated by NRCan as the proponent and overall project manager, and Public Works and Government Services Canada serves as the lead department on all major contracts.

In 2001, the Government of Canada committed to implement locally developed solutions for the safe cleanup and long-term management of low-level radioactive waste in the municipalities of Port Hope and Clarington. The waste originated from a radium and uranium refinery that began operations in Port Hope in the 1930s.
